

Short Description of Program:

What is “Grief” in today’s expanded behavioral model? Kübler-Ross is almost 60 years old, and yet it remains the most cited of the modern grief models. This exclusive FFH offering starts with aspects of microgrief due to momentary PTSD and the consistent barrage of conflict through misapplied expectation dynamics to the well-researched “loss grief” and beyond into complicated or extended deep grief. Every level of potential grief is explored through meaningful dialogue and leads to optimized coping mechanisms. The framework includes the philosophical, spiritual, psychological, physical, and sociocultural dynamics of modern grief. Climb aboard and find your answers today.
