

Short Description of Program:

What is “Community” in today’s divisive social environment? Families are more disconnected than ever, and COVID-19 created a polar opposite effect when family groups were thrust into hyperbolic inclusion involuntarily. Add in the barriers to social interaction, and you have a recipe for social discontent. A day of fun interaction focused on how to co-create community and personal space is the answer to what ails society. Plus, it offers unique bonding opportunities intra-family, inter-family, and neighbors, permitting people to be “human” again. This full-day event guarantees lunch and fun. FFH focuses on “local first” groups, energizing congregations for pastors, culture-building for organizations, and community-building. Contact Buddy for details on your customized program.
